

Technology has come a long way since the invention of the telegraph key and the Morse code in the mid to late 18 century. Think of how simple life was back then and how quickly things have changed in such a short time, which leads into the story of . . .

Three Women in a Sauna

Three women, two younger and one, a senior citizen, were sitting naked in a sauna.

Suddenly there was a beeping sound. One young woman pressed her forearm and the beep stopped. The others looked at her questioningly. "That was my pager," she said, "I have a microchip under the skin of my arm."

A few minutes later, a phone rang. The second young woman lifted her palm to her ear. When she finished, she explained. "That was my mobile phone; I have a microchip implanted in my hand."

The older woman felt very low-tech. Not to be outdone, she decided she had to do something just as impressive. She stepped out of the sauna and went to the bathroom.

She returned with some toilet paper hanging from her bum. The others raised their eyebrows and stared at her.

The older woman spoke up and said; "Well, will you look at that ... I'm getting a fax."
